Project Overview and Location

ABOUT THE PROJECT

EUROPE

The Canary Islands

The Canary Islands, an archipelago off the northwest coast of Africa, are part of Spain and known for their diverse landscapes and subtropical climate. The eight main islands—Tenerife, Gran Canaria, Lanzarote, Fuerteventura, La Palma, La Gomera, El Hierro, and La Graciosa—each offer a unique experience.

Tenerife, the largest island, is home to Mount Teide, Spain's highest peak and an active volcano. Fuerteventura boasts stunning sandy beaches, while Lanzarote is famous for its volcanic scenery. La Palma is renowned for stargazing under some of Europe's clearest skies.

With a rich blend of Spanish, African, and Latin American cultural influences, the islands are known for their vibrant festivals, local cuisine, and music. The warm, year-round climate makes the Canaries perfect for activities like hiking, surfing, and diving. The combination of natural beauty, adventure, and cultural richness makes the Canary Islands a top destination.
