

Cricket Coaching Volunteer Project – Accra, Ghana

Project Overview

Cricket in Ghana has grown steadily in recent years, due to the Ghana national cricket team's continued success in Africa's regional competitions and more recently Ghana competing in the ICC Global division, along with increased government backing and a new national school development programme. There is certainly no shortage of enthusiasm in the kids, but there is a clear need to develop the untapped pool of talent within Ghana's youth set-up. This cricket coaching volunteer placement gives you the opportunity to support that growth by working with young players in schools and clubs around Accra. You will have the opportunity to manage your own team and be responsible for the running and supervising of all the training for the players. Your role as a cricket coach in Ghana will be split into two important elements, theory and practice. You will be introducing simple batting, bowling and fielding techniques, and the theory behind your cricket team will develop rapidly as a group and as individuals. Your placement will also involve organising and umpiring cricket matches for the young players. The placement will be a fantastic opportunity for you to build on your confidence as a cricket coach, and develop your own coaching style.
